NO BASEBALL TODAY—The backstop in this picture hints this water covered field was used for baseball at one time but Monday it might have served as a swimming pool. This is Sportsmen's Park in the center of the Village of Mishicot, covered by several feet of water from the over-spilling East Twin River. Several of the small recreational buildings in the park have been swept away by the water. In center background can be seen the village water tower which is near the George Schmidt home where Schmidt died in an explosion and fire Monday noon. Additional pictures on an inside page.
